VERMONT'S NEWS SOURCE

Addison County is a vibrant, growing community located between Vermont's two largest cities, Burlington to the north and Rutland to the South. The county boasts a stable and diverse economic base made up primarily of tourism, agriculture, education, healthcare and light industry.

The Addison Independent is a family-owned newspaper that has worked to provide dependable news to the 23 towns of Addison County since 1946. We have the highest paid circulation of any publication in the county with a weekly paper that comes out on Thursdays each week. With an average print circulation of 6,200 and strong digital following, we estimate that we reach over 30,000 readers each week with our community news and advertising for area businesses.
